Three Great Games.

The three games last week between the Nashville Athletics and the Locals in this city, were witnessed by over a thousand people. The playing each day was good, but the visitors could not hold the Locals down and lost all three of the games. Thursday's score was: Hopkinsville, 2; Athletics, 0. On Friday the visitors got in one run and the home team made 9. This was just too much for the Nashville boys to swallow, so they wired a professional pitcher to be on hand to assist in Saturday's game. He arrived on the morning train and was in the box on time, but this did not seem to improve matters much. Our boys batted his ball all over the field at pleasure and made 13 scores. The home team pitchers were very sore from having twirled the ball in the two previous games, but held down the visitors, with little difficulty, to 8 runs. The local team has not lost a game this season, although they have several times crossed bats with clubs that have a reputation at stake as ball-players.

Kellar an Easy Winner.

Green R. Kellar, of Carlisle, was nominated for railroad commissioner on the first ballot by the Democratic district convention in the second district, held at Winchester last Friday. Kolla R. Hart was made permanent chairman and Joseph Jeffries, of Bell, permanent secretary.

No effort was made to pass a silver resolution. A packed committee was appointed with Al Perry as chairman and the following "suggestion" was adopted without a contest:

"We endorse the declaration of principles adopted by the National Democratic convention at Chicago and the conservative course of the party on financial questions, which has at length restored confidence to the business future of our country." Judge Helm, of Kenton, who the Covington Commonwealth says was not appointed a delegate, also offered a resolution endorsing Cleveland and Carlisle, which was adopted by an aye and no vote.

Silver Not 'en Wild.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 5th.—The Democratic silver convention adjourned to-night after a session in the course of which there was but little discussion. Resolutions were adopted declaring in favor of the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the United States at the ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the action of any other nation, as declared at length below; also endorsing the action of the Democratic Central committee in calling this convention and instructing the committee to carry out the will of the convention by inaugurating a campaign of education and thoroughly organizing the Democracy throughout the state on the lines laid down in the resolutions. The Democratic members of congress and senators are also instructed to use all honorable means to carry out the principles enunciated.

Resolutions were also adopted in favor of a national silver convention to be held not later than August, and delegates at large to such a convention if one shall be called, were selected.

Watkins Also Enters.

Judge T. J. Watkins, of Eddyville, is announced in his home paper as a candidate for circuit judge, making the sixth candidate to enter the race. Every county has one or more candidates. Christian has two, Calloway two, Trigg one and Lyon one. The Tale of two cities says of Judge Watkins: "His thirty years of active practice at the bar, for twenty years of which time he was county judge of Lyon county, has well qualified and equipped him for the important duties of circuit judge. As an honorable, upright, Christian gentleman and Democrat in whom there is no guile, he is not excelled in the district. His rare fund of legal knowledge and scholarly attainments fit him in such an eminent degree for the place that the convention could not do better than name him as a candidate."

Change the Convention.

The announcement of a candidate for circuit judge who lives in Eddyville makes that town no longer neutral ground upon which to hold the judicial convention, and the committee should meet and change the convention to Cerulean Springs. It is true that place is in Col. Burnett's territory, but it is remote from his home town and the other candidates could hardly object to the change. It is unfair to hold a convention in any town where a candidate lives and we suggest that Chairman Gatlin call his committee together for the purpose of taking action in this matter.

Thornberry Tamed Loose.

The jury in the Dawson murder case brought in a verdict last week at Madisonville acquitting Rufus Thornberry, who was charged with complicity in the crime. Two years ago Albert Berry, an old colored preacher, was murdered at a colored boarding house in Dawson. The colored persons in the house at the time testified to identifying Rufus Thornberry, Wm. Mensey and Volney Gilbert, as members of the party that did the shooting and located the time of the killing as between the arrival of the two midnight passenger trains. Thornberry proved by a dozen witnesses that he was in a poker game at the time mentioned, clearly establishing an alibi, and Mensey did likewise. Gilbert also gave a satisfactory account of himself, and these cases were also dismissed.

South Kentucky College.

Last night the societies of South Kentucky College gave their closing concert in the chapel, and this was followed by the Art Levee.

This morning at 10 a. m. the session will be formally closed with exercises at the College, including farewell speeches from faculty and students.

To-night Rev. R. Linn Cave will deliver the baccalaureate address at the Christian Church.

To-morrow night at the Opera House the graduates will receive their diplomas. The following degrees will be conferred: J. Paul Sladen, A. B.; Pauline Crumbaugh, A. B.; Thos. C. Jones, B. S.; Daisy L. Wood, B. L.; Hattie O. Gooch, B. L. and Music.

A small fee will be charged Wednesday night.

A Taste of Old Times.

Several prominent farmers have already sold their wheat crops for July delivery at from 70 to 75 cents. This is about 50 per cent higher than last year. The crop of 1894 was reported at about 650,000 bushels. This was by no means a full estimate, but at these figures the increased price represents a gain of $162,500 to the farmers of Christian county. This is a per capita increase of nearly $5 for all the population of the county and is bound to bring business generally and show the people how much better it would be for them to sell their produce at "inflated" prices.

No Camp Meeting at Sebree.

The proper authorities have, after full consideration, decided not to hold a camp meeting at Sebree this year. The reason assigned is that there is so much wrong-doing conducted in the vicinity, over which the church authorities have no control, that upon the whole the results of the meeting are not what they ought to be.—Hustler.

Judge McCarrall Presiding.

Judge Linn has gone home to enter upon a canvass, and the bar yesterday elected Judge Joe McCarrall to preside as Circuit Judge.

A Stupid Butler.

Spanish people seem to suffer from the stupidity of some of their servants as much as we do in America, if the following story, which appeared in a Madrid journal, is true. It seems that a lady ordered her butler one morning to tell all visitors that she was not at home. At night, when enumerating the persons who had called during the day, he mentioned the lady's sister, when his mistress exclaimed: "I told you, man, that I was always at home for my sister! You ought to have shown her in."

Next day the lady went out to make a few calls, and during her absence her sister came to the house. "Is your mistress at home?" she asked the butler. "Yes, madam," was the reply. "The lady went upstairs and looked everywhere for her sister. On coming downstairs she said to the butler: "My sister must have gone out, for I could not find her."

"Yes, madam," she has gone out, but she told me last night that she was always at home for you."—Harper's Round Table.

An Indication.

Mr. Northside walked into his parlor the other evening and was rather surprised to see his daughter sitting on young Mr. Hilltop's lap. The young people were surprised, too.

The older man was the first to recover his equanimity, and as Miss Northside found her feet he remarked:

"Ah, Lucy! I see your race for a husband is nearly over."

"What makes you say that, papa?" asked the girl, blushing painfully.

"You seemed to be on the last lap."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

A WISE DOG.

Story of a Pheasant Hound, Democratic and Homespun.

He Had No Pedigree and No Repository of Tricks, But He Knew a Good Deal—An Instance of His Wonderful Sagacity.

He was not a thoroughbred, high-toned dog with an ancestry that made him a canine aristocrat, says the Hartford Courant. He was a plebeian hound, democratic and homespun in his ways, with a degree of intelligence and common sense that would do credit to man, the speaking animal. His name was Pete, and for twenty years he was a member of the family of N. M. Wright of East Hartford. He had a good head on him for a dog, and many of his tests of mind power, so to speak, are traditions in the family. He knew all the members of the family when their various names were called, and would approach the mother or the aunt whenever told to do so, and never made a mistake. One instance of Pete's sagacity is worth noting as showing the quality of the dog.

It was during the period of heavy snow and impassable roads immediately succeeding the March blizzard of 1888. One member of the family was away from home six miles and a half and sick. There was no way to get any word to or from her, with the snow six to ten feet in the roads. Pete was familiar with the place where the sick person was, and how to get there. He also appeared very nervous and evidently missed the sick one from the house. One day it occurred that communication might be established by Pete. A note was tied about his neck and he was told to go and find the sick one. He plunged into the snow, mistaking way six miles and a half, gained entrance to the house, rushed into the sick room and jumped upon the bed. The note was read, an answer tied to Pete's collar, and he was sent back. He made the round trip in two hours and a half, and each day for two weeks made the same trip, varying scarcely a minute from two hours and a half on any trip.

Well, Pete grew old. He was weak, his teeth were gone, and it was hard lines for the old hound. Mr. Wright, although he has shot many animals in his capacity as agent for the Humane society, could not bring himself to part company with a friend that had done such faithful service and been so worthy a member of his family. So it happened that one day this week, Deight W. Thrall, the general agent of the society, was out in Hartford, and he was called upon to perform the sad office. Peter was sent across the Styx painlessly at the muzzle of Mr. Thrall's revolver. His body was put in a new pine box and he was accorded a decent burial, and there were real tears from those who loved him.

was grown out of girlhood, which had been instilled into their minds by Dodd's elegant sophistries, they saw nothing but foolishness in the fine arts made over the trifling adventure of the evening, and they were fiercely indignant at Wilder's treatment of the good man, who honored them by desiring to become their son-in-law.

"Daddy knew which sold his bread," muttered one, "grumbled Mrs. Whitford, as little escaped to her chamber."

"Just as he was going to set that gold mining company afloat," growled the corporal, "I wish that schoolmaster I wish he'd never shown his handsome face in these parts."

"What, Grey? Whattens he got to do with it?"

"Why, I heard," said Whitford, stolidly, puffing his pipe. "Why, I heard as there had been a sight of talk about our lass 'an' him, 'an' that the school board had something to say about it, my, I heard as he had to leave for carry on with Elsie. They kept it rum, but there was a bit of talk about it."

"It be all my fault," moaned the unhappy woman. "O! keep the lass!"

As she spoke the door opened and a figure glided into the room. It was the pastor. His clothes were soiled and torn, his face was ghastly, his eyes were wild, his hands were shaking.

"What's the matter?" he asked, his voice hoarse and broken.

"How did you come?" he asked, his voice hoarse and broken.

"I was in the wars, sir? Never mind, a little soap 'an' water 'll soon put ye to rights. A little vinegar 'ud be a good thing for your cheek, if it wasn't so broken and—"

For himself there were four letters, each bearing the address in large block letters of a Chicago daily paper. He glanced to himself as he received them, his only apprehension being that he had been precipitant in offering his services in such a broadcast manner, which might lead to the embarrassment of more than one accepting his proposition. Putting the precious missives in his pocket to be enjoyed at leisure in his lodgings he strolled away with much self-satisfaction, pausing for a moment to gaze with wonder into the show-windows of Clark street, where the second-class tradesmen were driving a roaring business notwithstanding the rainy weather, which prescribed fire insurance for all visitors of the Sabbath day.

He had crossed two blocks on his way to his lodging when his attention was attracted to a second-hand basement clothes store, in which, to his surprise, his handsome neighbor at the post office was standing in the midst of some dirty Jewish salesmen, engaged in a violent altercation, everyone of the shomene speaking at once, and the young man indignantly protesting in loud and angry tones.

Without a moment's reflection Grey sprang down the steps to the young man, who was being held back by the salesmen.

"Can I serve you in any way?" was the impetuous offer. "What is the matter?"

"Nothing. You thought it was a row, did you? Good fellow! it's only a way these enterprising gentlemen have of doing business."

"Indeed," the young man replied, blushing at his impatient interference. "I am very sorry I intruded."

"Never mention it. And now," said the stranger, turning to sell his coat, "the young man, who was being held back by the salesmen, was standing in the midst of some dirty Jewish salesmen, engaged in a violent altercation, everyone of the shomene speaking at once, and the young man indignantly protesting in loud and angry tones."

fourty—and in a few minutes found himself in the presence of an oldish man, rather inclined to corpulence, whose well-to-do air and comfortable surroundings hardly served to point a moral to his wall over the highest prospects of journalism. He received the young man, who stammered his apologies for his importunity, with good-humored cordiality.

"So you are another moth fluttering in the candle of literary hope?" he asked, with an amused smile.

"Well, yes, if you put it so. I do most earnestly wish to join your ranks."

"What do you think you are fit for?" "Oh, I am modest; I am willing to start with a pittance, say, to work for a time with no remuneration, if the chance be given me."

"Exactly. But what are your qualifications?"

"I can write rapidly and with tolerable accuracy. I have already done some magazine work, and—"

"Hah!" interrupted the eccentric editor. "Can you wallow in the mire of word politics? Are you hand-in-glove with the loafers who hang around Hans Fumpert's beer saloon? Can you forget that you are a man and betray private confidences; lie about people who have been gracious to you; put with insinuating, write against your most solemn convictions, and be ready to be kicked out of your berth by your employer?"

"Well, yes, if you are the result of this peculiar training, I—"

"Might venture too. Ah, young man, we are not so similarly situated—I never had a mother."

"Their name is legion, but with the exception of three or four you would be either requested to write for starvation wages or be engaged at a high salary and never paid. You might, if you were lucky, get nine dollars a week, and a bricklayer's wages are four dollars a day."

"The picture you draw is not encouraging."

"Nor do I mean it to be. Fly from this over-populated city, to which every young adventurer breeds from every country on the earth makes his way, till the streets are teeming with the unemployed—bad, say, have you an imagination? Can you paint a picture?"

A Condensed Account of the Latest Happenings, Tensely Told for Busy Readers.

William H. Russell, an evangelist, was sentenced at Baltimore, Md., to three years' imprisonment for perjury.

At Lexington George Green, colored, killed his wife and her father in cold blood and then attempted to commit suicide.

William Brown, an Indiana man, aged 70 recently released after twenty years' confinement in prison, married the woman to gain whom he killed a rival.

James Breck, aged ninety-two, and his wife, aged ninety, passed through Evansville on a hundred-mile tramp. They have been married seventy-two years.

The jury in the case of Isaiah Eakins' executor vs. the L. & N. Railroad at Henderson gave plaintiff a verdict for $15,000 damages. Eakins was killed by the cars at Roberts Station last winter.

Dink Willard, of Canton, a young man about nineteen years old, while about his work of baiting his trotline, some time after dark, was seized with an epileptic fit to which he was subject, and fell headlong into the river and was drowned. He was not discovered till the next morning.

Will Downs, who assaulted Pauline Eridenbaugh, was hanged at Monticello, Ark., Friday. He mounted the scaffold with a firm step and spoke for several minutes, stating that he was guilty of but part of what he was charged with. The condemned man said he had made his peace with God, and was ready to die.

Judge T. J. Morrow.

In this issue appears the announcement of Judge T. J. Morrow, of Christian county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge of this, the Third Judicial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Judge Morrow is by no means a stranger to the people of this county, and they have a very kindly feeling for him and will beglad to have the opportunity to show their appreciation of him as a man and an incorruptible lawyer and judge. He was raised in Caldwell county and educated at the old Cumberland College in Princeton, the institution that has turned out so many men that have become prominent in Kentucky and her sister States in the various pursuits of life. While quiet a young man, Judge Morrow began the practice of law at Princeton and was quite successful and soon ranked as one of the ablest lawyers at the Princeton bar. He served Lyon and Caldwell counties in the legislature. About 15 years ago he moved to Christian county, where he has built up a very lucrative practice. In 1890, he was elected County Judge of Christian, although the county had a Republican majority of 1,900, with indications his great popularity where he is best known. He is an upright, Christian gentleman and an able lawyer. His Democracy is unquestioned, and if the party should give him the nomination he would lead it to victory in November.—Eddyville Tale of Two Cities.

Had His Reasons.

Eye Witness.—Bravo, my good friend! You have exerted your utmost strength to save poor Rosent from a watery grave! Mandi!—And for a good reason! He owes me fifty marks.—Schlesische Zeitung.

THE PRETTY GIRL.

Had an Object in View When She Went into the Smoker.

She was a pretty creature, with a willowy form and a wicked, terrible smile in her eyes, and as she stood out on Flacey avenue in St. Louis, hailing an approaching car, with her skirts doubled about her to keep them out of the wet, she looked doubly entrancing, says an exchange. The car was one of the vestibule ones, and in one end smoking was permitted. Into this portion of the car my lady pranced, though several cigars, backed up by good, healthy lungs, had already provided smoke enough to stagger a smoke inspector.

She did not seem to notice and was not the least affected by the dense fumes. The conductor soon approached and while counting out some change to her said, very needlessly, to my mind, in view of the condition of the atmosphere, that this end was a smoking car.

"But you may remain if you do not mind the smoke," he concluded. "But I am going to smoke, too," she said.

The news of a Chinese victory would not have been more surprising. The conductor clutched one of the hanging straps for support, drew a long breath and then took a look, if a somewhat rude one, at his fair passenger. She was quite unabashed. Two men heard the remark and also turned to look at her, but she turned two full, deep-blue eyes upon them so innocently that they were compelled, from sheer etiquette, to remove their gaze. There seemed to be mischief lurking behind those same blue eyes, too, but it did not show itself much.

She opened her reticule calmly, as if no man were within one hundred miles of her, and procured the neatest of small cigarette boxes. It opened with a click and showed also some waxen matches. Then, wonderful sight, she lit a cigarette as neatly and as carefully as if she were the most insipid and callow youth ever leaved school, puffing cigarette at college. And when she had finished Vandeventer avenue had been reached. She tossed the stump upon the car floor and signaled the conductor to stop. She then alighted, and a few moments later she tripped up the stone steps and thence into the gymnasium of the Pastime Athletic club, where she is a member of the ladies' class.

Trombone Cure for Lungs.

"When I was in the early 20s," said Mr. Eugene C. Bin, of Albany, N. Y., "I worked in a shop devoted to the manufacture of mathematical instruments, and inhaled so much fine brass dust that my lungs became seriously affected and my whole system seemed undermined. My doctor told me that if I didn't quit the business I'd make a premature trip to the bone yard, and threw in some advice gratis. He said the best thing for me to do was to take up some kind of brass instrument, a trombone, for instance, and blow it with great vigor and regularly. It would repair my damaged lungs and restore the organs to their normal condition.

"Well, I took his advice, and ere long developed a fondness for all sorts of horn instruments. But best of all, I found that what the medical man said in regard to the effect of a trombone upon my health was verified. From being an emaciated wreck I became the proprietor of a double chin within two years, and when I paid a visit to the scene of my old labors not one of my former fellow workers knew me."—Washington Post.

She Wasn't Afraid of Snakes.

Most little children, unless they have been made afraid by their elders' nonsense, will pick up worms, bugs and toads as readily as they will flowers or pebbles; but it is no wonder Mrs. William Oshing, of Parker's Head, was startled the other day, when she looked round in response to the pleased call: "See, mamma, see!" by her two-year-old daughter Grace. The child was holding a long snake near its head, while its body was wound three times round the child's arm and the tail resting on her shoulder. The father being present, the child was soon relieved of her companion. Who said the enmity between woman and snakes was instinctive?—Lewiston Journal.

A Philanthropist.

Catterson—I tell you, old man, you are making an awful mistake. You ought to live in the country. Hatterston—I would, old fellow, but I hate to disappoint my friends who are already living there. Catterson—Disappoint them! How?

Hatterston—Well, you see, they like to visit me in the city so much.—N. Y. World.

Many a Slip.

Waiter.—Ready for toothpicks, sah?

Guest.—Yes, you may bring me a toothpick. I have a hollow tooth, and I believe that quail has slipped into it.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Large Party from this City Will Attend the Big Boston Convention.

On the morning of July 8th full one hundred people will leave this section in private Pullman sleepers for the great Christian Endeavor convention to be held in Boston July 10-15. The program is probably the finest in the world's history. Not only does it include the great divisions of America, but represents speakers from over 200 foreign countries. The Kentucky and Tennessee delegations will be quartered in "Greater Boston" special features. The convention will be pilgrimages specially conducted on Monday, July 15. These will go to Bunker Hill, Old South Church, Faneuil Hall, Cambridge, etc., where lectures will be delivered by the governor and other national men. The endeavorers will visit Plymouth Rock and travel again the course of Paul Revere.

The spiritual side of the convention is being made paramount, the great missionary cause will be made the most prominent feature. Arrangements are being made for between 50 and 75 thousand delegates. The convention will be held in Mechanics Hall and two mammoth tents. Arrangements are being made for the southern delegation to meet at Louisville in one grand excursion. A programme will be made up of the prominent men on board the train. The religious convention will be held en route. The party will leave here July 8th in their own elegant Pullman sleepers, and be joined by other delegates from Louisville and Cincinnati. Thence the Big Four, through Columbus to Cleveland, then along Lake Erie to Buffalo, stopping Tuesday at Niagara Falls, where the convention rally will be held in the afternoon. Leaving the Falls over the New York Central through the grand Mohawk Valley, crossing the Hudson river at Albany, crossing the Albany & Hudson through the beautiful Berkshire Hills to historic Boston. Here the party will remain sometime in the great convention and in the evening of the 11th will leave for New York City. Returning the party will take rail to Newport and stay a short time enjoying the grandeur of this beautiful port. Here they take one of the most elegant sound steamers, among the finest in the world, steaming twelve hours out on the waters, through Long Island Sound, to New York City. From New York they sail up the magnificent Hudson river to Albany, a day's ride. The rate will be about $29 from Hopkinsville, which is about one-third fare. The tickets can be extended for about two months. Mr. Fred A. Wallis will have charge of the party from this section, and he will give all information.
